

The new methods for determining the quality of fruit textures

S. Madani

Technical and Agricultural Engineering Research Institute, Karaj.

There are many factors that can affect on the food products texture quality such as firmness, tenderness and etc. There are different methods for determining the quality of food product texture. In this paper some of the newest of this methods are explained.